Mr. John A. McCone
Director
Central Intelligence Agency

Many of these materials have been borrowed from the Map Library of the Central Intelligence Agency. At all times staff members of the Map Library have been most cooperative in the selection and processing of the materials, and their help has been a valuable contribution to the work of this office.

I should like in particular to express my appreciation for the courteous and efficient assistance that has been rendered by the following staff members of the Map Library:

Their spirit of cooperation and willingness to use their expert knowledge of maps have been of immeasurable help in quickly locating the proper maps and other reference materials.

Sincerely yours,
